

Red-on-line is seeking a new paralegal or Environment, Health, and Safety (EHS) professional who is English speaking interested in EHS consulting. The EHS consultant will operate out of our London or Paris office (home office is an option if in the UK) and provide regulatory updates to both UK based clients as well as international corporate clients. The position is a full-time position.

Red-on-line is a fast-growing international EHS consulting firm whose team is comprised of multilingual legal professionals including lawyers and engineers in the field of EHS.

The position would entail:

- Researching European Directives and Regulations, UK (including Scottish, English etc) national laws etc;
- Summarizing new or revised EHS laws and regulations for clients;
- Identifying legislative and regulatory texts applicable to client facilities;
- Monitoring EHS issues to alert clients on expected regulations;
- Drafting summaries of new and trending EHS policies for publication.

Qualifications:

- LLB preferably with a focus on environmental law or occupational health and safety; or
- Masters in environmental management, science, engineering, or related discipline.
- Entry level applicants with less than two years of experience preferred.

Skills:

- Fluency in English (if not mother tongue)
- Strong analytical, research, writing, and communication skills, including a demonstrated ability to research and analyze UK law and policy;
- Previous experience in regulatory compliance, including contacts with regulatory bodies and the ISO 14001 and OHSAS 18001 processes would be desirable;
- Candidates without previous experience may be considered if they can demonstrate interest and understanding of UK environment, health and safety issues.

Interested candidates should send a cover letter and cv. Please send your application as one PDF document attachment to : sjarrylefort@infopro-digital.com

For more information, please visit www.red-on-line.net/en.